The Bethel Soldiers of '61, No. 17.

BY JUDGE C. F. WHITMAN.

The Rebels, emboldened by their successes in the campaign against Pope, began their

First Invasion of the North, and the command of the Army of the Potomac was again given to Gen'l McClellan. Our troops were soon in motion. The 5th Maine received orders to break camp on the sixth of September, 1862, while on battalion drill. It was 8 o'clock in the evening when the Reg't began the march. The moon shone brilliantly, and the men moved forward with light hearts and buoyant spirits. In two hours they crossed Long Bridge into the city of Washington, where the streets were crowded with people who received them with the greatest enthusiasm. As they passed the residence of the commanding general, the air rang with the wildest cheers. At one o'clock they bivouacked at Georgetown Heights. Here they rested till evening. It was Sunday, and for the first time in many months they heard the music of the Sabbath bells.

The march was continued for several days, and they finally pitched camp in the vicinity of Frederick City, where "Up the street had come the Rebel tread, Stonewall Jackson riding ahead. Under his stalwart hat, left and right He glanced; the old dag met his sight. 'Halt!'—the dust brown ranks stood fast; 'Fire!'—out blazed the rifle-blast. It shivered the window pane and sash; It rent the banner with seam and gash. Quick as it fell from the broken staff, Dame Barbara snatched the silken scarf; She leaned far out on the window sill And shook it forth with a royal will. 'Shoot, if you must, this old gray head, But spare your country's flag,' she said. A shade of sadness, a blush of shame, Over the face of the leader came; The nobler nature within him stirred To life, at that woman's deed and word: 'Who touches a hair of you gray head, Dies like a dog! March on,' he said."

Whether this incident ever happened at this place or elsewhere is doubtful, but it is one of those tales in which we like to place implicit confidence. Perhaps a Northerner, by throwing discredit upon its truthfulness, might be open to condemnation, as illustrated in the following: The late David Knapp, esq., once had a warm argument in the office of the writer, with a sceptic, as to whether there was any existence after death. After the discussion had lasted for some time, he brought it to a close by a flourish of his cane, exclaiming: "Well, if the belief in a hereafter is a delusion, d——d be the man who arouses me out of that delusion."

The 5th Maine reached the Blue Ridge on the 14th of September. The ascent was long and tedious. When the summit was reached, one of the most magnificent views, and the loveliest landscapes the soldiers had yet seen, presented itself to their astonished gaze. A valley long and narrow, with neatly painted dwellings here and there, surrounded with groves and fields, lay at their feet. On the other side was another range of mountains, where the smoke of battle rose from out its sides. They soon descended into the valley and marched to Jefferson, then a village of some 2,000 inhabitants, where they halted for a short rest. The people were loyal to their government, and many joined the army.

After partaking of refreshments, the boys started for Crampton's Gap, and they quickly advanced to which was held by a Rebel battery, supported by a strong force of infantry. The enemy was anticipating this movement, and was prepared.

Crampton Pass,

While our artillery engaged their attention, our troops, by a skillful manœuvre, succeeded in approaching to within a short distance of their works. This was done by marching through ravines and pieces of woods. They came out onto an open plain in full sight of the enemy. The 9th Maine and 10th New York were formed in line of battle and given the post of honor. The Rebel position was naturally a strong one, but it was necessary to the Army of the Potomac that it should be taken, and it was expected that Slocum's Division would do it at all hazards and at whatever cost. "Forward!" rang out the voice of the commander, and the 5th Maine and 16th New York, as if on parade, moved grandly onward to engage Howell Cobb's veterans, supported by "Jeb." Stuart's cavalry. They were in an open field and shot and shell from the Rebel battery made gaps in their lines that were quickly closed again. Our cannon ceased their work, lest they might fire into our charging column while the rest of the division were being placed into position to charge with the bayonet, when the time should come. Over the bloody track of three-fourths of a mile they went, leaping nearly half a dozen rail fences, and passing through a large cornfield on the way. Reaching a favorable position within a short distance of the enemy's lines, they opened a terrible fire of musketry upon them. It was hot work now. Muskets were loaded and fired as fast as it was possible for men to do. Our brave boys fell thick and fast. One long hour passed, and the ammunition began to fail, and orders were sent back for more.

"Hold Your Position at All Hazards!"

was the response of Slocum. The dead were searched for cartridges. Our fire slackened. Down the mountain on the run came reinforcements for the enemy. Crampton Pass was important to Lee, as well as McClellan.

The time had come. Just as our men were becoming disheartened, they saw Slocum's men move forward with the bayonet. That gallant officer knew what he was about. "Forward, double quick! charge!" With a rush Slocum's troops passed the 5th Maine and 16th New York, and soon the Rebels were in swift retreat up the mountain. In fifteen minutes Crampton Pass was in our possession. We captured 800 prisoners and several cannon. The 5th Maine lost 45 men killed, wounded and missing. Of the Bethel company, John F. Bryant of Bethel, Samuel E. Lufkin of Rumford, and Oliver Fletcher of Sacco, were killed, and Enoch Whittemore, of Woodstock, wounded.

In the afternoon of the 13th, Gen'l McClellan had directed Gen'l Franklin to move with his corps to Crampton Pass, and is reported to have said in closing: "I ask of you at this important moment, all your intellect and the utmost activity that a general can exercise." The Rebel Gen'l, D. H. Hill, says that McClellan by moving with celerity might have cut Lee's army in two. "McClellan was too cautious a man for so daring a venture. Had he made it, Jackson could have escaped across the Potomac, but the force under Lee in person, (Longstreet's division and my division) must have been caught." "Frederick the Great's campaign against the allies, shows what he would have done had he been in command of the Fed'l army. But the American soldier preferred to do sure work, rather than brilliant work, his natural caution being increased by the carping criticisms of his enemies."

The capture of Crampton Pass, though tardy through no fault of Slocum and his men, was a brilliant feat, and an immense advantage to our army. Stuart, the Rebel cavalry raider, had abandoned Turner's Gap to prevent our taking Crampton Pass, when he ascertained the movement to storm it. He did not get the bulk of his troops there in season to prevent it.

Sumner and Hartford Fair.

The annual fair and cattle show of Sumner and Hartford was held at East Sumner on Thursday, Oct. 14th.

Although the day was somewhat cold it was otherwise pleasant and a large number of people were present from these and surrounding towns. The display of cattle was good, though hardly equal to that of former years, and the hall exhibits were numerous, both in farm products and in the ladies' department.

Following are the reports of committees in full:—

Town Teams:—Hartford, 1st; Sumner, 2d.

Working Oxen.—S. I. Crockett, 1st; Jas. Glover, 2d; Wm. B. Russell, 3d.

Matched Cattle.—Oxen, S. I. Crockett, 1st; four-year-olds J. T. Glover, 1st; J. F. Young, 2d; three-year-olds, Joshua Young, 1st; 2 oxes Young, 2d; two-year-olds, Levi Newell, 1st; E. L. Andrews, 2d; Joshua Young, 3d; yearlings, J. W. Farnum, 1st; B. F. Glover, 2d.

Best Oxen and Steers.—Oxen, S. I. Crockett, 1st; four-year-old, Geo. F. Dyer, 1st; two-year-old, Joshua Young, 1st; yearlings, R. O. Saunders, 1st; B. F. Glover, 2d. Fat cattle, oxen, Geo. F. Dyer, 1st; H. A. Young, 2d; Jas. Glover, 3d. Bulls, calf, Daniel Russell, 1st.

Colts.—Three-year-old, Albert Ames, 1st; two-year-old, Geo. F. Dyer, 1st; one-year-old, Wm. H. Downs, 1st.

Drawing Match.—Oxen, S. I. Crockett, 1st; Albert Ames, 2d; Levi Newell, 3d. Three-year-old steers, Joshua Young, 1st; Albert Ames, 2d; S. I. Crockett, 3d.

Sheep.—Buck, Ira Palmer, jr., 1st.

Fruit.—Apples, S. F. Stetson, 1st; Wm. R. Sewell, 2d; J. B. Dunn, 3d. Grapes, J. T. Glover, 1st; W. H. Downs, 2d. Pears, J. T. Glover, 1st; J. H. Robinson, 2d; S. M. Stetson, 3d. Plums, William Cushman, 1st.

Vegetables.—Best variety, W. H. Eastman. Beets, W. H. Downs, 1st; W. H. Eastman, 2d; Chas. M. Sewell, 3d. Carrots, W. H. Eastman, 1st; Chas. M. Sewell, 2d. Cabbages, W. H. Eastman, 1st; W. H. Downs, 2d; Chas. M. Sewell, 3d. Onions, W. H. Eastman, 1st; Geo. H. Packard, 2d. Pumpkins, J. T. Glover, 1st. Parsnips, W. R. Eastman, 1st. Potatoes.—Geo. E. Barrows, 1st; Daniel Manchan, 2d; S. Robinson, 3d. Squashes, Ezra Keene, jr., 1st; W. H. Eastman, 2d; Geo. H. Packard, 3d. Turnips, W. H. Downs, 1st.

Dairy Products.—We find two samples of Jersey butter. We go by the principle of "hands off" and report by the eye. Mrs. J. H. Robinson enters a very nice box of stamped butter in balls which we judge to be first-class. Mrs. A. W. Hatton displays a box in bricks and balls, first rate in quality, and also shows how much can be made from a small cow, a brick and over, 1¼ lbs. per day. We would be glad to report on a larger display of dairy products but close with these.

Seeds and Grain.—Seed corn, W. R. Glover, 1st; J. T. Glover, 2d; Geo. H. Packard, 3d. Pop corn, B. F. Glover, 1st. Wheat, S. M. Stetson, 1st.

Canned Fruit and Preserves.—We find a fine display. Mrs. W. P. Bridgham displays one can of blackberries and one of pears. Mrs. F. C. Foye displays one of jelly, one of crab apples, one of pears. Mrs. Julia S. Heald displays one can of strawberries, one of pears. Mrs. S. M. Bryant, can of plums, pears and jelly. Nettie Manwell, tumbler of crab apple jelly, also one of blackberry jelly. J. L. Doter displays one box of evaporated apples. As your committee was not authorized to break seals and thought it best to "touch not, taste not, handle not" we report as things appeared all first-class.

Household Fabrics.—Quilts, Mrs. John Manwell, 1st; Mrs. Ruth V. Young, 2d; knit spread, Mrs. John F. Tyler, 1st; silk quilt, Mrs. Hattie Hollis, 1st; drawn rugs Mrs. Madison Russell, 1st; Agnes Glover, 2d; braided rug, Mrs. Mary A. Fletcher, 1st; other rugs, Mrs. Geo. Bisbee, 1st; Mrs. Jas. Glover, 2d; carpeting, Mrs. Ruth V. Young, 1st.

Fancy Articles.—Mantle lambrequin, Mrs. B. P. Atkins, 1st; Mrs. Hannah Robinson, 2d; table scarf, Mrs. B. P. Atkins, 1st; stand cloth, Flossie E. Sturtevant (10 years old) 1st; wall basket, Mrs. Wm. Cushman, 1st; splasher, Lilla F. Stetson, 1st; paper flowers, Gertrude Palmer, 1st; worsted tidy, Carrie F. Coles, 1st; wall pocket, hand painted, Lilla F. Stetson, 1st; crocheted hand bag, Gertrude Palmer, 1st; rick-rack collar, Mrs. Helen S. Thomas, 1st; banner, Clara E. Stetson, 1st; Mikado fan, Lucy Manwell, 1st; thermometer case, Clara E. Stetson, 1st; sofa pillow, Hattie Heald, 1st; tidy, Mrs. Ella Heald, 1st; crocheted tidy, Mrs. Emma Corliss, 1st.

Miscellaneous.—Organs, W. J. Wheeler; lap boards, F. L. Harlow; flowers, W. H. Eastman, Nettie Manwell; white rats, Geo. W. Manwell; dentistry, Dr. C. R. Davis; photographs, R. S. Stevens; white bread, Mrs. Cara E. Foye.

Forty-three Years Ago.

Forty-three years ago last June, a man whose name I afterwards learned was Berry, came into the field where I was assisting my father in hoeing corn, and stated that it was his intention to start a paper in Norway village the next spring, to be called the

Norway Advertiser,

and wished my father to become a subscriber. He did so, which pleased me exceedingly, as reading matter of any sort was very scarce among the farmers of Oxford County at that time. Early the next spring, on a

Tuesday March 19th, 1844,

the first number of the new paper saw the light. Its coming was a decided event in our quiet town, and was looked forward to with great interest. Many a time did I travel three miles after a hard day's work, on the evening of the day of its publication, to obtain my paper, and then read every word of it before retiring for the night.

The Motto of the Paper Was,

"Trade, indeed, increases the wealth and glory of a country; but its real strength and stamina are to be looked for among the cultivators of the land, ...Pitt." I give the punctuation marks as they are given in the paper. No name appears as editor and proprietor, but an article on the subject of the Oxford County Agricultural Society appears in its columns, addressed "Mr. Editor, Jerry," and our recollection is that Ira Berry was the editor and publisher. In the article referred to the writer states that the next "Fair and Cattle Show" will be held at "Turner Village next October," and he complains that no farmers west of Waterford take any interest in the Society.

Among the Advertisers in This First Issue are H. G. Cole, Simeon Walton, Wm. E. Goodnow, Thomas Higgins, J. M. Blossom & Co., Wm. Andrews, Robert Noyes, David P. Hanniford, Shackley & Howe, Ephraim Brown, Peter B. Frost, Lorenzo Hathaway, A. C. Dennison & Co., Hall & Dow, Henry R. Cushman.

Town Officers

for that year were chosen as follows at the Annual Meeting held on March 4th:—Ezra F. Beal, Moderator; Simon Stevens, Town Clerk; Jonathan Swift, Wm. Parsons, jr., Mark P. Smith, Selectmen, Assessors and Overseers of the Poor, James Crockett, Treas.; George J. Ordway, Collector; Rev. Charles Soule, Rev. Timothy J. Tenney, Samuel Cobb, Sup. School Com.; Henry W. Millett, Town Agent. Among the minor officers were four Tythingmen, Dudley Woodbridge, Samuel Lord, Ezra F. Beal, Joseph Cushman, and for Pound Keeper, James Flint.

There is an item to the effect that Cassius M. Clay, one of the richest men in Kentucky had announced his intention to emancipate his slaves in the course of that year, also an item giving news

Only Nine Days Old From England.

The Advertiser was printed on an old hand press and many a time have I stood by and seen the work done.

The office was in the second story of the building now occupied by Whitcomb & Smiley and the entrance by outside stairs on the west side of the building. Mr. J. H. Merrill either at that time or soon after kept a general store underneath. The building has been extended further back since and changed about in various ways. ONE.

It is not every day that notes the departure of a missionary from Oxford County to a foreign field; nor are there many Oxford Bears in the foreign missionary service. With the exception of the veteran Dr. Jewett, who has been so long identified with the Indian missions, and who is a native of Buckfield, we did not know. To that solitary representative, however, is soon to be added another, Rev. J. E. Cochrane, who has just sailed for Tavoy, Burmah.

Rev. Mr. Cochrane is a native of Aroostook County, a graduate of Colby University and Rochester Theological Seminary. His first pastorate was with the Baptist church on Paris Hill, where he has remained for the past three years. During the first two years of this pastorate he also had a charge at West Paris; and during the last year on at South Paris. The church at this latter place was organized and the church edifice built, largely through his influence. He has always had a longing to do missionary work, and two months ago he accepted a field of labor in Tavoy.

Tavoy is the principal city of a district in Tenasserim, one of the British Burmah. The town is situated about one-fourth way down on the Malay Peninsula, on the river of Tavoy about thirty-four miles from the sea. Light-draft vessels can reach the town but the larger ships have to anchor thirty miles below at Goodridge Plains. It is a city of about fifteen thousand inhabitants, consisting of Burmans, Sinus, Thounghoys, Karens, Chinese and Malays,—the larger number being Burmahs. It is said to be a town in which Burmah life and manners can be seen in all its simplicity. The houses are raised from the ground on piles and made of bamboo fastened with rattan with a thatched roof of palm leaves. The shops are mere sheds where the venders sit in the midst of their wares. The streets are shaded with palms, plantains, cassias and many flowering shrubs almost concealing the houses from view from the river. Outside the city the country is occupied almost entirely with raising rice. As a general thing the climate is considered healthy; and not inimical to American constitutions; although the rice fields around the city are a prolific source of malaria.

One of the curious customs of this city is its grand buffalo-fight that takes place once a year. The fight continues two days and eight pairs of buffaloes are engaged in it, each animal representing a different township.

Mr. Cochrane sailed the 14th in company with seventeen other missionaries, both men and women. Three beside Mr. Cochrane and wife are for Tavoy.—Rev. Mr. Merrow and wife, missionaries, and a Miss Johnson who is to be a teacher. They go direct to Liverpool and from thence through the Mediterranean and Red seas via Suez canal.

We understand the voyage permits them to stop a week or more in England, and that they stop at several places in the Mediterranean and Red seas of particular interest to a clergymen; also at Bombay, Madras, Calcutta and Rangoon, landing in Tavoy in about two months.

Tavoy is of interest as a point of association for a Maine man and a graduate of Colby University as it was the field of labor of George Dana Boardman, the first graduate of the above institution and a distinguished missionary of the American Baptist Missionary Union. The Boardman Missionary Society connected with Colby University is named in honor of Dr. Boardman.

Mr. Cochrane expects a vacation in two years when he will visit this country and this town, the seat of his first parish.

The good wishes of all go with Mr. Cochrane and wife; and there is no doubt that he will adorn this new vocation of Oxford Bears in a fitting manner.

A Trip in the West.

The Journey Out.

BY E. E. HOLMES.

The morning I left Lewiston was as pleasant as could be wished for the clear, fall air was sharp and invigorating. I got on the train en route for the far west and was soon off. It was with some misgivings that I passed out from under the wing of the depot; by the works of the Lewiston Machine Co., where I first began the machinists trade, and across the long bridge which spans the river above the falls. But that was soon over and after a short stop at the Auburn depot, the shoe factories of Auburn; the numerous steeples and cotton mills of Lewiston all swiftly faded from view.

I had a ticket in my pocket for Denver, and at that time I had no more idea of going to New Mexico than I had of going to Alaska, but once in the whirl of western life one never knows where he will come out. I stopped over night in Boston, and was out early fairly on my way when at the Boston & Albany depot I met the friend who was to accompany me on my journey, and together we took our seats in the three o'clock Lightning Express for Albany. We soon left the last well known landmarks behind as we rapidly passed out of sight of the familiar outlines of the Boston & Providence depot, the Institute building and the level tract of the Back Bay district.

Our first stop was for supper at Albany. Here was our first experience with Union depots and for the first it was rather depressing. It was only 10 p. m. when we arrived but the depot was closed and the dining room and waiting rooms were dark and deserted. This struck us being rather queer for so large a city. But at last we were shown into a cold lunch-room where a sleepy looking man dealt us out some cold boiled eggs of doubtful age and baked chicken whose age was not at all doubtful. But we were soon snugly ensconced in the smoking car again and speeding away through New York state on the New York Central road. This road in connection with the "Lake Shore" line runs a continuous four track line from New York city to Chicago.

We reached Buffalo in the morning but could see but little of the city from the train, as the road passed through miles of freight cars and yards where the making up of trains goes on unceasingly day and night.

We took breakfast and were soon aboard again on a Lake Shore train. Lake Erie was soon presented to our view. Lake Auburn dwindled down to a small sized frog pond beside this link in the chain of fresh water seas which stretch along the northern border of our country. The farther shore can only be seen as a dim blue cloud laying close to the dark water.

At Cleveland, O., the most prominent feature seemed to be the immense oil tanks and reservoirs. Its large Union depot is a splendid building. It is said to have furnished the pattern for the depot in Worcester, Mass., and to have been erected by the same man, but they resemble each other only in the immense stone arch under which the trains run. In the Cleveland depot the waiting rooms and offices are arranged along the side, while in the Worcester depot they are all grouped at one end.

Leaving Cleveland we turn our faces toward the south for a while on the Bee Line. We had our first experience with dining room cars on this line. Their mode of serving the public is thus,—a man gets on at a station and goes through the train taking the orders, at the next station he telegraphs them ahead and at the next the car is shuckled on behind with everything prepared and the passenger takes his steak and hot coffee as comfortably while going at the rate of forty miles per hour as if sitting in an up town restaurant.

We passed through Indianapolis, the capitol of Indiana, in the night and as we did not change cars I slept through it all, thus missing the sight of this great railroad centre of the west.

The next morning we arrived at St. Louis, after being half smothered in smoke going through the tunnel which from the great bridge across the Mississippi leads directly under the business part of the city to the Union depot. We stopped over at this place for the purpose of seeing the sights in and around the city. The day was rather dreary, it rained and the sidewalks were slippery with mud, the crossings were ankle deep and in some places the whole paving of the street seemed to have fallen through somewhere and the wagons sank into the holes axle deep.

St. Louis is a very old city. It was first settled in 1764 and its very name is redolent of French, Spaniards and Creoles, wealth and romance. We went up into the city and saw the city buildings, the St. James and Southern hotels and then we went down to the river to see one of the greatest engineering works of man, namely, the St. Louis bridge which spans the Mississippi at this point. The two approaches east and west are together over 5000 ft. in length. The bridge itself between the abutments is 1500 feet long. There are three spans, two 510 ft. and one 520 ft. in length. The road bed for carriages and foot travel is on top and is 52 ft. wide. The railroad tracks are directly underneath, two in number. The tunnel through the bluffs and underneath the city is 4800 feet long.

As I stood on its road-bed admiring the strength and solidity of the great arches which support the immense structure, it seemed a work almost too great for man to have accomplished but there it stands the greatest work of its kind in the world, an enduring monument of the power of the brain which planned it and of the skill of the workmen who built it. I then looked down on the muddy seething waters below and recalled the time when I sat in the old school-house and studied about the Mississippi river, the greatest in the United States, and with the Missouri the longest in the world, and how I wished in a dreamy kind of a way to be able to see it some time, and here it is beneath my feet just as wide, strong and turbulent as I had ever pictured it in my imagination. The great highway made by nature through the center of this immense country.

In the summer season its surface is covered with steamers and flat boats engaged in trade up and down the river from St. Pauls to New Orleans and from Cincinnati to the waters of the Yellow-stone. And even now the view up and down the river presents a busy scene. There were still many boats and the shores were lined with wharves, wood, lumber and coal yards, and store-houses and manufactories of all descriptions.

After dinner, which we took at the Laclede hotel, it rained so hard that we had to give up all thoughts of of visiting any other portions of the city so we returned to the depot to wait patiently until the evening train for Kansas City but time quickly passed away while watching the rush and bustle of the ever changing crowds of people coming and going on the different routes.

At 8 o'clock we boarded the Chicago & Alton train and were soon flying on our way westward again. The rush of the crowds and roar of trains at a depot where fifteen or twenty great trunk lines center in the heart of one our large cities about the time of the arrival and departure of the through express train forms a perfect babel which must be seen and heard to be appreciated.

We were quickly out of the noise and confusion however, and settled for a night's sleep. When we woke up in the morning we

BETHEL.

O. S. Richards has just returned from Vermont with a very fine Morgan four years old colt.

J. C. Billings is getting up two double sleighs of a new pattern which will lead the styles for the coming winter.

Died in Newry, Oct. 15, Fanny Bartlett, wife of Elijah Powers, of paralysis. She had a shock 4 years ago.

Conference passed off very quietly Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, there being a very fair attendance but not a crowd. Strangers were hospitably entertained at private houses and lunches were provided at the church vestry for all who declined. The discussions were very interesting and a cheering influence was apparent.

Mrs. J. C. Billings is away visiting in Gorham, N. H. Mrs. J. Q. A. Wentworth of Salmon Falls, N. H., is visiting with her.

Mrs. E. A. Courser has removed her dressmaking to O. S. Richards' on Mechanic St., where she is ready to receive her customers.

Mr. Richards is the agent for the Singer Sewing machine.

The new well at the Bethel House has ten feet of water in it and is nine feet in diameter. Mr. Lovejoy intends putting in force pumps and have hose in readiness to throw the water over the top of the house in case of fire. We noticed, this week, quite a crowd at the hotel tables which were princely furnished.

Two car loads of kerosene, 45 bbls. each, came in Wednesday for our traders. The freight is much less on car loads, so they make their purchases together.

MIDDLE INTERVALE.—Mrs. Polly Bean, an aged lady in this vicinity, died Oct. 10th. Funeral services held at the church here conducted by Rev. A. R. Sylvester, M. E. preacher at Bethel Hill, assisted by Rev. Wm. Stevens of Bethel.

A potato was dug in Mr. Carter's field that weighed 2¼ lbs.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryant of this town, now having charge of the Greenwood town farm, have under their charge an insane young lady. While making them a call a few days ago we were pained to see the change in her face and general appearance, for only a few years ago she was among a company of intelligent scholars at the Steam Mill Village school in Bethel. We could but admire the patience and kindness of Mrs. Bryant who seemingly thoughtless of her own comfort and health, seemed constantly caring for the unfortunate ones under her charge. While there this young lady started on a quick run, and before Mr. B. could overtake her should think she was a mile from the house. We could but think that the Insane Hospital is the proper place for her unless she has relatives to care for her. Mr. B. and wife have evidently been doing their best for the town. We were shown as handsome a chamber of yellow corn lying on the floor and hanging in traces of a bushel each as we ever looked upon.

We recently took dinner at Mr. Kilborn Perham's of Woodstock and were very courteously entertained. Among the many beautiful things we saw were painted French oil photos executed by his daughter Mabel, also nice Kensington painting, among which attracted my attention most was golden rod, pansies and daisies. They looked very nice and natural. She learned the work of French oil photos from a firm in Portland, from printed instructions.

We called a few days ago at a Mr. Judkins in Greenwood and found three of the family sick with typhoid fever.

As we wended our way back we could but notice the fading falling leaves which art could not equal, speaking as no human tongue could speak, calling as no human voice can call, teaching as no human teacher can teach.

Like the leaves we soon do fade,
And as them be lowly laid,
But to life will bud again
In a land that's free from pain.

SOUTH HIRAM.

Tuesday evening about seventy-five neighbors and friends gathered at Moses Stanley's to participate in a real old fashioned husking and apple cutting. Over a hundred baskets of corn were husked in the barn, while in the house the strings of apple ready for drying accumulated rapidly. Supper was served between ten and eleven, after which the young people investigated the mysteries of "old maid," "the needle's eye" and similar amusements. We understand that some of the party didn't get home until the small hours of the morning and all declare that it was the event of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stanley, jr., of Charlestown, Mass., who have been visiting friends in this vicinity went home this week. Their friends have enjoyed their visit very much but have one fault to find with it viz. its not half long enough.

C. F. Wadsworth has been picking the cranberries on his meadow and now has about three hundred bushels of nice ones drying in his cranberry house and waiting to be picked over and barrelled up for market.

Lewis Thompson, while climbing over a wall Friday stepped on a rolling stone and fell, breaking his wrist.

Frank Gould had a fore finger taken off Monday by a rock falling on it while he was working on his cellar.

Horace Sawyer this week moved into Moses Stanley's unoccupied house.

Charles Stanley and Rendall Stanley are holding a series of prayer meetings at the Union church. Great interest is shown and we hope much good may be done.

Edwin Merrifield is having quite a job of work done on his house.

Mrs. D. W. Babson of Rockport, Mass., has been visiting Mrs. Clay of So. Hiram.

EAST BETHEL.

The fall term of school commenced in district No. 8 on Monday, Oct. 18th, taught by James S. Hutchins of Rumford. Mr. Hutchins taught the term here last winter with very good success. He governs his pupils with firm yet loving discipline which wins the respect of both scholars and parents. School also commenced in the David Foster district Oct. 18 taught by Effie Ellis of Paris.

Mrs. Frank Brown is very sick and her recovery is quite doubtful.

Harvey Bartlett and wife returned to their home in Boston, Mass., last week.

HANOVER.

Isaac Bagnall has had a job completed at his mill that gives him 4 feet more head on his wheel. It was done by lowering the wheel, which, owing to the peculiarity of the soil, was said by many could not be done. The soil is a clay loom that is very hard to dig up, but a person standing on it and swaying himself back and forth, not removing his feet, may work himself down out of sight. Mr. Bagnall offered $100 to any one who would put in or down the foundation. Almeran Roberts took the job, and in five days with six men he successfully accomplished the job. It was done by sinking a curb 8x16 feet, made of plank and timber, and weighted with ten tons of stone. One man was at each corner pounding with a heavy weight, while others dug from the inside. It frequently sprung a leak, but with that perseverance that knows no backing out the job was successfully accomplished.

James Mitchell, from Salem, Mass., made a flying visit to his many friends in this vicinity, and returned last Tuesday.

Mrs. A. K. Knapp is on a visit to her friends in Boston.

Mrs. E. C. Putnam is in Boston.

S. W. Holt is making an addition to his shop.

J. B. Roberts has dropped a stitch in his back.

Tom Powers is spreading the mortar in C. B. Frost's house.

WEST BETHEL.

A shooting match came off last Saturday with L. E. Allen and A. L. Chaplin, captains, which resulted in the defeat of Allen and his comrades who are to pay for the oyster supper.

L. Ordway has gone to Lynn, Mass.

Mrs. John Hunt of Newburyport, Mass., is here on a visit to her relatives.

L. E. Allen has moved from his father's house to the rent formerly occupied by H. E. Bean.

Mrs. Moses Mason is still very feeble. Although her disease is pronounced by the doctors to be past all cure, she seems to be quite cheerful and jolly, and shows a remarkable grit for a woman of her age and condition. She has always been a very hard working woman.

School in district No. 6 in Gilead is being taught by Mollie Barker, of West Bethel, who is a nice teacher and is giving perfect satisfaction.

Josiah Connor lost a nice hog by some disease unknown to him.

D. O. Holt is improving the looks of his buildings by building a new piazza.

Lydia Briggs of Albany, is at work for Mrs. W. Mills.

Ruel Needham and wife of Rumford, have been visiting Mrs. Irene Needham of this place.

Harold Chapman has started out in the meat business. Mr. C. is a fine young man and his customers will find that he carries the best quality of meat.

Mr. Elliot at the mill, who has charge of the lathe rooms, appears to be a fine fellow, well understands the business and is well liked by the whole crew.

W. D. Mills is still at war with the iron which he has in his shop and is heating and pounding it into various shapes to suit his customers. He is a good workman and can do as good a job at blacksmithing as the next one. He is an extra hand to shoe horses.

A. K. Scribner has raised this year a very nice piece of corn. According to the piece he planted we think the quantity and quality hasn't been beaten this season.

Frank Ordway of Haverhill, Mass., is here spending a few weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Ordway.

EAST STONEHAM.

On the evening of the 13th inst. a social meeting for the benefit of the Sabbath School to instruct and interest the scholars was held by Rev. T. M. Beadenkoff, of Waterford, at G. A. R. hall in this village. Music, singing, select reading, and views with the telescope and microscope, with which through his kindness we were favored, rendered the evening's entertainment very pleasant and interesting. We trust that his efforts in guiding the young may be productive of much good.

Geo. F. Leppin R. Corps celebrated the first anniversary since their organization last Friday evening, the 15th, at G. A. R. hall. There was a large attendance, as many as could be conveniently seated in the hall. The programme for the evening was as follows:—Prayer by Rev. Mr. Beadenkoff, music by quartette, anniversary address by Mrs. F. E. Spurr, Chap. of the W. S. R. C., remarks by Rev. J. W. Webster of Lovell, remarks from Rev. T. M. Beadenkoff; National air by Geo. Eastman, bass, Mrs. Mary McDaniel, treble, accompanied by Mrs. Geo. W. Woodbury on organ, and singing also; recitation by Myrta Butters; a farce entitled "No Cure, No Pay" by seven members of the Relief Corps, which caused much amusement; music and singing. Supper was then announced and the company went to the dining hall in K. of P. building, when they did justice to the viands prepared for the occasion. After supper returned to G. A. R. hall. The remainder of the evening was passed in the following manner, recitations by Mrs. F. E. Spurr and Mary McKeen, music on organ by Mr. McDaniel of Lovell, singing by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Parker, Mrs. McDaniel, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Butters and Geo. W. Stearns, of Lovell, who was also stage manager for the evening. A very nice guess cake with the initials W. S. R. C. thereon, made by Mrs. Lydia McKeen, was won by Chas. Bartlett and Frank McKeen. The silver castor was drawn by Charles Bartlett. The silver cake basket which was sold by votes fell to the lot of the Corps Pres., Mrs. M. L. Evans. Invitation was given to the comrades of the G. A. R. to speak and was responded to by J. S. Small and Geo. W. Spurr. We consider our evening's entertainment a very pleasant and successful one and feel much pleased. We thank all our friends who assisted us in any way to make our first anniversary one long to be remembered as a happy event.

On Saturday last the remains of John Howe were brought to this village and interred in the cemetery here. Mr. Howe was a very aged man and is well known in this town, having lived here some years engaged in lumber and mill business in which he accumulated considerable property. He was an active and industrious business man until the infirmities of old age came upon him. For many years he has been a member of the Advent church.

WELCHVILLE.

The K. of L. assembly are to put up a hall 30x50 feet very soon on the lot of land they purchased of Seth Ames just above the blacksmith shop. This will fill a long-felt want as a hall has been much needed in this village.

The Harper M'f'g Co. commenced running on the ten hour system Monday. They commence at half past six mornings but shut down at 3 p. m. Saturdays. All seem to be satisfied with this arrangement.

Rev. C. S. Cummings of Bridgton occupied the pulpit at the Methodist church Sunday, having exchanged with Rev. Mr. Buffum.

Apple buyers are paying from $1.25 to $1.30 for winter fruit. Almost all brought in town are shipped to Europe. VOX.

ALBANY.

James F. Bird and wife celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their marriage the 13th inst. They had the pleasure of entertaining their neighbors and friends afternoon and evening to the number of seventy-five, treated them to a good supper, etc. Appropriate remarks were made and prayer offered by Rev. Mr. Witham of Mason. It was a social and enjoyable time. The bridal pair received substantial tokens of regard in numerous presents, some of which were quite costly, also the best wishes of all for happiness and prosperity during scores of years of conjugal life in coming time and in eternity rest with the Lord. H.

KEZAR FALLS.

Lewis Thompson broke his arm while getting over the wall lately.

The Mawowandos were victorious over the Academies Saturday 2 to 15.

John Stacy is in poor health.

Huskings are in order now.

Eugene Stanley, our undertaker, has a new sign. It looks nice.

A bell is soon to take the place of the whistle on the factory.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stanley, jr., leave for home Thursday.

Mrs. G. A. S. Fowler had a tumor taken from her body that weighed 66 lbs. It is thought she cannot live.

Preston Gould goes to Boston this week to stop this winter.

Horace Sawyer and wife have hired with Moses Stanley for a year.

Samuel Fox killed 3 coons the other morning.

Many farmers have sold their apples to Mr. Bean.

We are sorry to hear that our friend S. L. H. has met with an accident. DICK.

EAST PERU.

The thermometer was 28 degrees above zero the 16th at this place.

The Frenchmen are done cutting wood on Kidder's island. About 200 cords is the amount got.

S. W. Irish made us a call. He resides in Norway but owns a farm at this place and is now gathering apples.

The birch business is beginning to start up. G. T. Piper will operate here in the same mill as last year. He intends to put in 300 cords at $3.50 and $4.00 per cord but it must be good birch and nothing under six inches through.

Harmon French intends to put in 100 or 150 cords of cord wood and hard wood shook timber.

Frank Kidder intends to put in 150 cords of hard wood shook stuff to go to Thayer's mill at Canton Point.

M. Hall will clear a lot of hemlock from a lot this winter. Business looks the most brisk at this place in years. There is quite a call for lumber out now.

C. F. Deshon is about the coming [illegible]. He is very badly broken down.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Shannon of Gilbertville, have been visiting their parents at Montreal. He has returned but the wife and child are stopping at her parents, P. Oldham's, to prevent catching diphtheria. Seventeen or eighteen have died in Gilbertville since the disease broke out, and not one single case that has recovered.

At 8 p. m. Sunday the ground was white with snow.

Cyrus Hazelton of this place has moved to Jackson Village, Sumner, to live. He has had charge of the widow Levi Randall's farm this season.

Warren Curtis' family have moved to Norway. He has worked there in the shoe factory for a year and is well pleased with his job and the location. Norway is one of the prettiest and has the most business of any place in Maine of its size. A number of families have moved from this town there and all like well.

GILEAD.

Josiah Heath reports a very pleasant time while visiting his friend, Mr. Dunham, of Lynn, Mass. Mr. Dunham was formerly from Masontown, Me., but now holds a position as light-house keeper of the romantic place "Na-Haunt" or egg rock off Lynn.

Ella Harwood and Lillian Waldron are here visiting their mother, Mrs. A. S. Hodgman.

The suspension bridge is going up again under the management of A. B. Lary, Geo. I. Burnham and A. J. Blake, Supts.

J. W. Bennett has newly shingled his store. Cyrus Gammon has workmen completing repairs on his barn.

A dress-maker has been stopping a few days in town making tidies, patch-work, etc. Wonder if it came from Jordan & Marsh's.

I understand that the Hastings have signs posted on the Wild river road forbidding any traveling over said road without consent as said road is private property.

Joshua Parker is to go to Berlin Falls, N. H.

Mrs. Saunderson has returned from her trip to New York. MUNN.

BRYANT'S POND.

A runaway took place here last week. Capt. Dearborn's spirited horse ran with his carriage from Dudley's store towards Locke's Mills about two miles without injuring himself or the carriage.

Sylvania Perham has been sick but is better now.

H. H. & G. L. Cushman have purchased a nice Holstein bull calf of Col. Edwards of Bethel.

Jerry Cole is at work for the Cushman Bros.

G. S. Whitman was serenaded last week by some young fellows with tin pans, cow bells, etc. CLINTON.

The Ladies Circle connected with the Universalist society will meet at the Town Hall Thursday evening, Oct. 28th. All are invited to be present.

The mill is shut down this week as many of the workmen are called to attend court as witnesses in the case of John F. Dearborn vs. The Portland Company. COM.

PARIS HILL.

The great business of the past few weeks in this place has been apple gathering. This is the banner district of a banner apple town. It is estimated that nearly 6000 bushels of apples will be barreled in this vicinity of the village. This represents all varieties, but buyers still prefer Baldwins, although many of our farmers think they are running out, and are planting other kinds.

L. B. Merrill, who has recently purchased the Crooker stand, is improving it by adding bay windows and piazzas to the front, and entirely re-arranging the inside. When finished, it will be one of the finest residences on the Hill.

There will be an examination of teachers for the winter terms in the town of Paris Saturday, Oct. 30, commencing at 9 o'clock, at Academy Hall in this village.

Notwithstanding the driving storm Tuesday night of last week, a large load of young people visited Charles Morrill to help him husk out his corn, and partake of his wife's excellent cooking.

There is to be a large sale of valuable minerals in New York Oct. 28, and 100 beautiful tourmalines from Mt. Mica will be sold. They were sent last week by Dr. A. C. Hamlin, of Bangor, president of the Mt. Mica Co.

Rev. G. E. Tufts, of Belfast, Me., preached in the Baptist church Sunday forenoon and evening.

There were no services at the Universalist church Sunday, owing to the sickness of the pastor, Rev. Miss Angel.

Loren B. Merrill has purchased the Cummings' fields of B. S. Doe.

Frank Whittemore has gone to New York.

Rev. W. B. Stuart, of Waterville, delivered a lecture here Tuesday evening in Academy Hall, on mental and moral science.

Among the strangers here last week were the following: E. A. Chase and wife, of Dedham, Mass.; Frank L. Dingley, editor of the Lewiston Journal; Rev. S. F. Root, Auburn; Richard S. Dow and wife, of Bangor; Aaron Mason, Kezar Falls; George H. Brown, of Mason; David Dunn, esq., Mechanic Falls; Col. A. D. White, Buckfield; Gilbert Barrett, Buckfield.

PARTRIDGE DIST.—Augusta Hammond entertained her young friends at her home Tuesday eve, Oct. 12th, owing to the rain but few were present.

Joshua Small, who has been stopping with his daughter, Mrs. Charles Colby, has gone to spend the winter with the other daughter of his, Mrs. Beattie, Berlin Falls, N. H.

Mrs. Hiram Field is very much worse.

Frank Field works in the sled factory.

William Gray is sick and hardly able to do any work.

Charles Benson, esq., was in the neighborhood last week.

Elroy Dean and family have been at his father's a short time but have now returned home.

BYRON.

John O. Johnson and family have gone to Florida. Leroy Thomas bought their farm, oxen and hay, and will move onto the place in the spring.

Green Hodsdon will start next Wednesday for Mass., on a gum trip, and to bring his daughter home who is stopping at Sterling, Mass.

Meetings are quite frequent in Hop City and vicinity—two ministers are stopping on Buckfield Hill, and one is at S. M. Locke's. They hold meetings about every night.

Gilbert Hodsdon and A. M. Jinkens are building a camp in the woods, where they will gum all winter.

As S. M. Locke was returning home from Byron last Saturday night, where he had been running lines, he collided with Sam Knapp near John Huston's and his wagon was badly smashed. Knapp was with two horses and had on a load of boards, and was chasing a single team with the horses on the run. Fortunately no one was injured by the collision.

Harry Bancroft will move into his house near Coos bridge next week.

The Frenchmen have all left town—the last family leaving Thursday.

Joseph Reed and D. A. Merrill are building a bridge on Ellis brook, near John Pressey's.

GREENWOOD.

The correspondent intended to have said last week that the proposed place for a steam mill was four and a half miles from West Paris station, and two miles from Curtis Crossing where it has been talked of putting in a siding, which would be forthcoming if a steam mill should be put in here at the City.

W. H. Martin and wife have been to Bridgton to visit his son and other friends. They attended the cattle show which he says was an old fashioned one. A great many people seemed to be very happy.

The West Paris butter factory is selling its butter at good prices, 27 cents for August make and 30 cents for September make at the depot. The farmers are more than pleased with the butter factory. Now would be a good time for some one to buy C. N. Buck's farm, and keep twenty cows for the factory, besides some other stock.

Mrs. I. F. Emmons and her daughter, Bertha, have been to Wayne visiting friends.

Austin J. Hayes, from Hebron High School, came home Monday night. We presume he intends to return.

Johnson Martin commenced work in Kimball's chair factory at West Paris last Monday.

Some of our farmers have not finished digging their potatoes yet. Their toes will soon be cold. JOHN.

RUMFORD CENTER.

The following officers of Blazing Star Lodge, F. and A. M., were installed Oct. 14, 1886, by Past Master, F. H. Bartlett: Isaac Bagnell, W. M.; R. E. Martin, S. W.; Fred A. Barker, J. W.; J. H. Howe, Treas.; Henry M. Colby, Sec.; H. E. Hutchins, S. D.; Edward Smith, J. D.; G. B. Hannaford, Chap.; C. P. Eaton, S. S.; J. S. Morse, J. S.; W. S. Howe, Mar.; C. B. Abbott, Tyler. The Methodists will hold a series of meetings here soon. Some have from abroad is expected. H.

HEBRON.

The farmers are improving the fine weather in picking their apples, for which this town is famous.

The cellar and foundation of Dr. Dunham's new house is progressing slowly. The house and ell will be built this fall, the stable next spring. The Dr. has chosen a fine location for his house as well as for his practice. A good physician has long been desired in Hebron, and now it seems that the people have what they desire; willing to practice what he recommends, that "God's free oxygen is the best medicine for man." The Dr. is hauling and laying the stone himself.

Rev. Mr. Harden has returned from a vacation trip to Rockland, Sedgwick and Swan's Island. Prof. Sargent supplied the pulpit during his absence.

Walter E. Morton of So. Paris, a graduate of the class of '83, is giving painting and drawing lessons at the Academy.

A reunion of the class of '86 occurred Wednesday eve the 13th, nineteen members being present.

Hebron, though somewhat secluded and hidden to the scrutinizing world, is not so far away but it feels the tide of modern progression, and following the example of its richer neighbors Norway and So. Paris, it has put in a system of water works of its own, bringing the water from a spring back of the Academy, and running into nearly every house in the village. Not content with this act of public enterprise it proposes to illumine its streets by a system of street lamps. These improvements together with the prospect of a new Academy will make the place for a school more attractive and desirable than ever. G. M.

NORTH RUMFORD.

Mrs. H. E. Hutchins and Mattie Dorr had a very narrow escape last Wednesday from being gored to death by a vicious ox. They were picking some apples by the roadside, when an ox owned by Chas. Bartlett then being driven past, rushed at them throwing them down and tearing their clothes into shreds. But for the timely interference of Mr. Hutchins and his dog, the result might have been very serious. They escaped, however, with only a few bruises, torn clothes and a severe fright. It was not known that the ox was vicious or he would not have been driven along the highway.

Jonathan Grover has sold his Ecliar colt for a round sum.

Ed. Elliot is running his cider mill in full blast.

The apples are about all gathered, and they turn out better than was expected.

Will Elliot and bride from Attleborough, Mass., has been on a visit to this place.

OXFORD.

On Thursday last, 14th inst., Joseph Tripp was brought before Judge Andrews, charged with not sending his boy, Samuel to school twelve weeks this year. He was found to be guilty, and fined $1.00 and costs.

L. Brown is finishing off the ell to J. F. Haynes' fine residence on Republican Avenue. He has also repainted the whole set of buildings.

D. P. Eaton's family are to move into the rent formerly occupied by Mrs. Jane McAlister, a few months ago.

The Oxford water works have just been completed, and are now working in first-class condition. The water is reported as being good, and plenty of it.

We understand that the ten-hour system has been adopted at Welchville. We think it a good plan, as many of the mill hands look tired and worn out with early rising, the hard work of a long day and only forty minutes nooning.

L. C. Stone has opened an oyster saloon in connection with his confectionery shop.

FRYEBURG.

Jane W. Frye, an old resident of this village, has lately been married at Washington, D. C., to Henry A. Coolidge of Ohio.

Geo. H. McKeen of Paris, is in Gerry's Drug Store.

John Z. Shedd is teaching in West Fryeburg.

Rev. J. K. Mason, who has been acting pastor of the Cong'l church in this village since 1877, has received a call to Herndon, Va., which he has decided to accept and leaves here Saturday. Monday evening he was met by a number of his parishioners at the residence of D. R. Hastings and presented with a sum of money as a token of their friendship. Dr. Mason and family leave a large circle of friends in this and other towns and still better no enemies. He goes to his new field with the best wishes of all.

Charles Prince is building a house near L. Olney's.

Simon Shine of Portland, has opened a dry goods store in the store lately occupied by W. Locke, who has removed to his new and spacious quarters in the new store on Oxford St., near the Swedenborgian church. The store is nicely furnished and he has a large stock of all kinds of boots and shoes.

Carrie Roach, teacher of Elocution in the Academy gave a recital at Kent's Hill Seminary Monday evening.

Sullivan and Stattons Black Diamons and Theatre Company played "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "East Lynne" two evenings last week.

Prof. W. W. Dayton gave a Spiritualistic entertainment here last Thurday evening and disclosed the secrets of spiritual mediums to a well filled and appreciative house. It is hoped he will appear here again as his entertainment is first-class.

The first regular meeting of the C. L. S. C. was held last Friday at the residence of N. O. McIntire. A large number of members were present and the meeting was very interesting and instructive. This week Friday evening it meets at A. F. Richardson's with the following program:—Roll call answered by quotations from great Geologists; questions on geology; "Maine Glaciers," A. F. Richardson; "The process of Steel manufacture," J. S. Barrows; Book Review Hugh Miller's Testimony of the Rocks, Rev. B. N. Stone; reading by Mary W. Weston; table talk; the news of the week.

A stone curbing and posts have been placed around the sidewalk on the corner of Main and Portland Sts. by the Post-office Block.

The Fryeburg Temperance Association met Sunday evening at the Swedenborgian church.

Union Conference of Cong'l Churches meets here next week.

F. A. Wiley and M. C. Powers have gone to North Carolina on business. J.

NORTH WATERFORD.

Daniel Warren picked six hundred barrels of baldwins from his orchard.

Apples are selling here for $1.25 per bbl.

J. F. Rice is having the hotel painted.

Aggie Sawin found a ripe field strawberry Oct. 9.

Saunders & Kilbourn are repairing the grist mill, and are going to put in some lathes for turning dowels.

There was quite a crowd of people at the fair in this place Saturday. It was a very cold and windy day and drove many into the houses and wherever they could find a fire, but there were those that were warm enough without getting near a fire. Yes, there were lots of travelling whiskey saloons and walking rum barrels from adjoining towns, making the day and night hideous with their slang and profanity. It was a disgrace to themselves and the public at large.

SOUTH WATERFORD.

School commenced in this village on Monday of last week, under the instruction of Will Martin of Lovell. Mr. M. comes well recommended as a teacher, and we are looking for a profitable term.

L. B. Sanborn and family, formerly of this place, but now of Lancaster, Mass., are in town for a short time. "Lyme" has come prepared, and fully intends to capture a number of foxes while here.

The first hunt of the season takes place this Thursday, with Geo. A. Hapgood and G. C. Pickard as Captains. Several crack wing shots are to participate and a large score and close work is looked for.

We learn indirectly of the marriage of our old friend and schoolmate, Briggs Monroe, to a very worthy young lady of St. Paul, Minn., where he now resides. We confess surprise, not only at the fact of his marriage, but that he did not even remember his old Waterford friends with cards. We will forgive him however and wish him a long and happy life of wedded bliss.

Mention was omitted in report of the Waterford fair of a fine display of wheels from the well known manufacturers, Walter K. Hamlin & Co., and also of the field trial of plows in which the "Yankee," "Buffkin," and "O. K." contested. The committee would report that excellent work was performed by all and especially by the two former, between which they did not decide as to superiority. D.

Catarrh Cured

Catarrh is a very prevalent disease, with distressing and offensive symptoms. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives ready relief and speedy cure, from the fact it acts through the blood, and thus reaches every part of the system.

"I suffered with catarrh fifteen years. Took Hood's Sarsaparilla and I am not troubled any with catarrh, and my general health is much better." I. W. LILLIS, Postal Clerk Chicago & St. Louis Railroad.

"I suffered with catarrh 6 or 8 years; tried many wonderful cures, inhalers, etc., spending nearly one hundred dollars without benefit. I tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, and was greatly improved." M. A. ABBEY, Worcester, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is characterized by three peculiarities: 1st, the combination of remedial agents; 2d, the proportion; 3d, the process of securing the active medicinal qualities. The result is a medicine of unrivaled strength, effecting cures hitherto unknown. Send for book containing additional evidence.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla comes up my way; purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, seems to make me over." J. P. THOMAS, Register of Deeds, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others. People write with its weight in gold." I. BARRING, 120 Bank Street, New York City.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

100 Doses One Dollar

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Louisa Pike, Bartonia, Randolph Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with Consumption and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and began buying it of me. In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and has so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it." Free Trial Bottles at Noyes' Drug Store.

That Coon Hunt and Supper.

This poem was prepared to be read at the Supper of the Coon Hunt of the Oxford Gun Club.

I have read of the fame of the "O. G. C."
And some of "the Boys" I have met;
And jolly good times these Boys must have,
For remarkable game they get.

When they shoot at a coon and kill a black cat
Supposing the story to be
If I had been out on a time with the Boys
I wouldn't have told it, would you?

Because it gives rise to a doubt in ones mind
In regard to that supper you know,
As to whether their "Roast" was a coon or a cat.
Have they any proof they can show?

Sometimes these Boys make a sad mistake;
I assure you this is a fact.
The last night they went out hunting coon,
It was Lobster they brought back.

But if you went with them to supper that night
And will kindly tell me that
If you are sure that their coon was coon,
Or was it that cat, I ask.

For when those Boys are out on a time;
Or go hunting for coons and "stick,"
I have heard it said, though don't mention it,
They cannot tell "t'other from which."

Now just a word for that wonderful dog,
That Boxer; he can't be beat.
He is swift and sly, with a "mouth for pie,"
Or a nice roasted joint of meat.

Well now, I suppose I must say good bye
And lay aside my pen.
But if you have time please let me know
When the Boys go hunting again.

YOUR LIVER

Secretes the bile and is one of the most important organs of the human system. Jaundice, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Foul Stomach, Variable Appetite, Sallow Complexion, Constipation and all the ills that accompany them, are indications of Liver Complaint.

"I had a severe case of Liver Complaint with habitual constipation; my appetite would be good one day and poor the next, my eyes showed evidence of Jaundice, and I had a tired, uncomfortable feeling; I bought one bottle of Brown's Sarsaparilla. It regulated my liver and bowels so that their action is as good as ever. My general health is now good. I owe it all to the use of Brown's Sarsaparilla.

HON. B. B. THOMAS,
Trens. Penobscot Co., Bangor, Me."

"Father!" said a young man, working in Sargent's mill, in Brewer, Me., "are you going to Bangor to-night?" "Yes, my son, why?" "I want you to get me a bottle of Brown's Sarsaparilla. I am most out and don't want to be without it." The father, who keeps the boarding house at the mill, says his son was all run down, had no appetite, worried about one-half the time, and was always tired. Can now (thanks to Brown's Sarsaparilla) work every day, has good appetite, color has come into his face. He is sure that Brown's Sarsaparilla is wonderful in cases of general debility.

MR. E. CONN, one of the most prominent merchants of Bangor, has suffered from liver troubles for two years. Mr. Cobb has consulted good physicians, taken various remedies, but got little or no assistance until he began the use of Brown's Sarsaparilla. He says it is the best thing for Liver Complaint that ever came to his notice, and freely recommends it to his friends.

"I was all out of fix this Spring," said MR. L. O. OAKS, merchant at Garland, Me. "I read some of the testimonials, bought some of Brown's Sarsaparilla, took one bottle, and am to-day better than I have been for years. I recommend Brown's Sarsaparilla above all medicines I have as I know it is a good."

READER!—If you have any trouble with your kidneys you can find a certain relief for it by using Brown's Sarsaparilla.

Your money refunded if it does not do all claimed.

Brown's Sarsaparilla is sold by all Druggists for $1.00; 6 bottles for $5.00. ALTA WARREN, Proprietor, Bangor, Me.

Walter S. Abbott last week became the happy possessor of a four wheeled vehicle of unquestionable antiquity and peculiar construction, which, although he does not claim it to be contemporaneous with Noah's ark, was evidently built more than a century ago. It is a covered carriage with a seating capacity for only one person of moderate size, mounted upon springs and with wooden axles. No maker's name or date of construction has yet been discovered, and the history of this peculiar carriage is but little known by its present owner, who purchased it last summer from Mr. Edwin Rawson, a prominent attorney of New York, son of Judge Rawson formerly of Rumford, by whom it was used during his lifetime, and also by his father before him for many years. It is a curiosity in the line of carriage architecture and has attracted much attention since its arrival here.

Miss N. E. Dean has returned from the city and has bought many new things in millinery which she is showing her customers. You should call and examine for yourself.

G. L. Porter is doing a large business evaporating apples. It is no uncommon sight to see four or five teams standing before his evaporating building laden with apples. "It is too bad to sell such apples as those for ten cents a bushel," said a farmer to the reporter as he was viewing a load of rosy apples, each apple as large as your fist. "Its giving them away, for at that price we can only get pay for picking and hauling." "Why do you sell them then for that price?" asked the scribe. "I'll tell you," said the farmer, "my wife and girls usually dry them, but the price has been going down and down, and last year they couldn't give 'em away." The reporter sighed as he thought that the autumn fly-roosts that have so long decorated rural dwellings had got to go like the Chinese, to give place to modern improvement and industry.

The fast train on the Grand Trunk Railway, The Flying Canadian, that has been running during the summer to accommodate the increased number of tourists and bank robbers seeking the confines of our Northern neighbor, has been discontinued; also, the Boston & Maine parlor car on the through mail trains to the White Mountains. Supreme Judicial Court.

October Term 1886.

JUDGE, T. H. HASKELL.

Thursday, Oct. 14, Aulistus L. Chesley and Nellie M. Chesley vs. Moses Chesley. An action of assumsit upon account annexed. This case was in order in the morning, but was dimissed for defect in writ.

B. G. Hall. David Dunn.

In the afternoon the case, inhabitants of Buckfield vs. Fred A. Houghenswoll, an action of assumsit to recover the sum of about $150 for pauper supplies furnished the wife of the defendent, was called. A demurrer was filled by defendant and allowed. Exceptions taken and allowed. The case goes forward to the Law Court.

Brigham. Bisbee & Hersey.

The Jurors were excused till Friday.

Ebenezer E Rand vs John R Edgcomb. An action upon a promissory note bearing date of February 18, 1878, for the sum of $100 payable on demand. The defendant admitted the signature upon the note, but claimed that the date had been altered from February 8th to February 18th, thereby taking the note out of the statutes of limitations, which was pleaded in defense. The case was submitted to the Jury at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and at about 5 o'clock a verdict was returned for the defendant.

Hammons. Moses & Swasey.

J. Woodman Gerrish, of Bethel, was this morning brought into court by Deputy Sheriff Godwin upon a capias, he having refused to obey a summons of this court to appear as a witness before the Grand Jury. The witness was then taken before the Grand Jury, and after he had testified, he was brought into court and was adjudged in contempt, and was ordered to pay a fine of $20 and costs of the capias taxed at $10.65, making $30.65 in all. The fine and costs were paid. In fixing the penalty, the Court remarked that he was determined that it should be understood that the precepts of the court must be obeyed.

The Grand Jury rose Friday afternoon, having been in session four days. Thirteen indictments were presented. The Court excused the Jurors until the next term of the court in February.

Saturday, John Austin vs. Alpheus Burgess. An action on a promissory note dated March 10, 1870, for the sum of $17. Plaintiff non-suit.

Randalls. Ludden.

Hiram M. Everett vs. Ruth Winchester. A writ of entry to obtain possession of a piece of land situated in Hebron. Demurrer.

Purington. Wright.

State vs. Stevens. Indicted at the present term as a common seller. Plea, guilty. Sentenced to pay a fine of $100, and costs amounting to $24.60. Fine and costs paid.

State vs. Jones. Indicted at the present term as a common seller. Plea, guilty. Sentenced to pay a fine of $100, and costs amounting to $24.60. Fine and costs paid.

Monday the following Jurymen were sworn in: J. P. Richardson and George A. Briggs, Paris; R. K. Morrell and A. A. Grover, Norway.

Richard C. Lawrence vs. Ira Johnson and Justine E. McIntire came to an abrupt end on account of a former decree in favor of the defence, of which the plaintiff had no knowledge.

Frye. Kimball.

The following new list of libels for divorce have been entered upon the docket at this term:

658 Addie L Jackson, libelant, vs. Jefferson Jackson, jr.
Hutchins. —Democrat.

MONDAY AFTERNOON

335. Charles L Abbott vs. Daniel B Grover, Admr. of Abner F Bennett.

This was an action of assumsit to recover the sum of $346.17, which plaintiff claimed to be due him for services in taking care of the cattle of the defendant intestate for several winters, and for several other services performed by him. Defense was that the services were performed under a contract, and that plaintiff had received satisfaction for the same. Case was submitted to the Jury about 7:30 Monday evening, and a verdict was reached about 2 o'clock in the morning, giving the plaintiff $20.00.

R A Frye. Bearce & Stearns.

The next case taken up Tuesday morning was

270. John F Dearborn vs. the Portland Co.

This was an action brought to recover damages, (claimed at $15,000.00) for injuries to plaintiff's machinery and lumber, caused by an explosion of a boiler in his mill at Bryant's Pond, which explosion plaintiff claims was due to the fault of the employees of defendant's company, in not making repairs upon and testing the boiler in a proper and safe way. All of the day Tuesday, and the greater part of Wednesday was occupied by the plaintiff's side of the case, and it will not be given to the Jury probably before Friday. This is a very important case, and attracts wide attention. The explosion, which is the basis of the action, is the well remembered catastrophe at Bryant's Pond about two years ago, which killed four men and almost totally destroyed the spool and dowel mill and machinery of Capt. Dearborn, the plaintiff, who brings the action. Eminent counsel are engaged on both sides and every point is sharply contested.

Herrick, Swasey, Geo F Holmes.
Bisbee, C F Libby.

The following is the result of the work before the Grand Jury:—

State of Maine vs. Henry J. Corson. Common seller. Arraigned. Reading of indictment, waived. Plea, not guilty. Respondent recognized in $500 for his appearance from day to day, and answer.

State of Maine vs. Cotton Elliott. Common seller. Arraigned. Plea, nolo contenti. Fine $100 and costs taxed at $10—$110. Fine and costs paid. Respondent discharged.

State of Maine vs. Charles H. Harris. Common seller. Arraigned. Plea, guilty. Fine $100 and costs taxed at $33.36—$133-36. Fine and costs paid. Respondent discharged.

State of Maine vs. Amos M. Austin. Common seller. Arraigned. Reading of indictment waived. Plea, guilty. Fine $100 costs taxed at $10—$110. Fine and costs paid. Respondent discharged.

NOTES.

Court, according to present indications, will last well into the fourth week.

S. R. Carter, esq., of Paris Hill, has a map of the Umbagog Lakes made by the famous Indian, Metallack, in 1830. Gov. Enoch Lincoln and Hon. Elijah L. Hamlin were camping in that region with him during that year, and he made a map on birch bark for each of them. The one made for Mr. Hamlin is now in Mr. Carter's possession. It was presumably drawn with gunpowder mixed with water. It is said to be an excellent map of the Umbagog Lakes.

SHERIFF BASSETT CAUGHT HIM.

Joseph Churchill, of Paris, got a warrant out for the arrest of Peter Kane, a tramp, who broke into Churchill's house last Tuesday and stole some ten dollars from a trunk belonging to Nellie M. Churchill. Armed with the warrant for arrest, officer Bassett Wednesday visited Portland, and then Lewiston and from there to Portland again, in which city he caught his man, and brought him to Paris Hill. Kane plead guilty, and was sentenced Thursday morning by being fined ten dollars and costs, and 30 days in jail, and stand committed until fine and costs were paid.

Cattle Show and Fair at North Waterford.

For a series of years Waterford, Albany, Stoneham and North Lovell have held their annual Fair at North Waterford. This year Sweden makes a creditable show of cattle with them. We think this town has rendered valuable assistance before. These Fairs have been largely attended and very successful in the past, and notwithstanding the unfavorable weather this year's fair is no exception.

The day opened cold and cloudy, so much so that many were kept away. Some thought the Fair would be postponed. Others there were who preferred to put on their overcoats, wrap up well and ride to the Fair rather than drive their stock as they had previously intended. This made the exhibits less than they would have been under more favorable circumstances.

We think the attendance large for so rough a day. We notice people here from Bridgton, Harrison and Otisfield, and a large delegation from Norway. Bethel is also well represented. The usual number of peddlers and venders of small wares are here. The peanut man with "Fresh baked peanuts, two bags for five cents," meets you at every turn. Fingers, the mighty man with the mallet, invites you to try your strength on his machine. The dance at Mosher's hall, afternoon and evening bids fair to be well patronized. Moses knows how to treat his guests so they will come again. His house is full and we predict for him a good day's work.

The trial of strength for oxen excites considerable interest. Dunn Hall the veteran and other good drivers are here. Albany came in with 40 pairs of oxen and steers in one string. We did not count the Stoneham team. Waterford had some very good cattle. Ten pairs came in from Sweden in one team. We saw none from North Lovell. There must have been between two and three hundred cattle on the grounds.

Horses and colts.—The horse breeders in this vicinity made a very creditable show. There were some fine horses and colts on the grounds enclosed for them. Others are to be found in the stables sheltered from the cold winds. Among the latter we find Gen. Garfield. Owing to a misunderstanding as to time of viewing horses of this class he was not exhibited before the committee to compete for the premium.

G. W. Hobson exhibited Ben Butler. Ben is a good horse and the pride of his owner. J. A. Bennett and G. M. Knight exhibit colts sired by this horse.

H. M. Fiske exhibits the two years old stallion Prince Bismarck sired by Gen. Garfield; Jonathan Bartlett brood mare and colts; G. W. Beckler brood mare with colt by her side; W. B. Cummings same. J. L. Parker, Isaac Wardwell, Frank Briggs and Will Fiske are among the exhibitors of fine colts. J. F. Bird brought in a nice brood mare with a fine colt by her side after the premiums had been awarded. Below we append a list of premiums awarded by the committees.

Suckers, W. B. Cummings, 1st; J. Bartlett, 2d; G. W. Beckler, 3d.

Yearlings, Will Fiske, 1st; J. L. Parker, 2; Frank Briggs, 3d. 2 yrs. old, H. M. Fiske, 1st; J. A. Bennett, 2d and G. M. Knight, 3d. 3 yrs. old, Isaac Wardwell, 1st and J. Bartlett 2d. Brood mares, W. B. Cummings, 1st; J. Bartlett, 2d; G. W. Beckler, 3d. Stallions, G. W. Hobson, 1st.

Matched oxen and steers.—Oxen, H. M. Fiske, 1st; Henry Abbott, 2d; Merritt Sawin, 3d. 4 yrs. old, J. A. Bennett, 1st; J. W. Dresser, 2d; Osgood Drew, 3d. 3 yrs. old, Solon Moore, 1st; H. M. Fiske, 2d. 2 yrs. old, Austin Hutchinson, 1st; Elmer Fiske, 2d; F. P. Dresser, 3d. 1 yr. old, W. Cummings, 1st; O. Drew, 2d; S. L. Plummer, 3d. Trained calves, Fred Saunders, 1st; Edgar Shedd, 2d.

Parker Dresser exhibits 8 good Durham calves. Bulls, J. W. Dresser, 1st and 2d; Henry Abbott, 3d.

Town Teams.—Albany, 1st; Sweden, 2d; Waterford, 3d.

Drawing—First class, 6 ft. 2 in. and under, Elmer Fiske, 1st, $2; John Flint, 2d, $1. Second class, 6 ft. 10 in. and under, S. L. Plummer, 1st, $2; W. Bisbee, 2d, $1. Third class, over 6 ft. 10 in. In this class Chas. Cole entered a pair of 7 ft. oxen and John Lord a pair 7 ft. 2 in. After repeated trials, each time a little more load being added, the drag was broken and owing to the lateness of the hour the parties agreed to divide the purse of $3.00 and call it a draw game.

In the hall we find everything much as usual. Among the articles on exhibition we notice the following: Several varieties of apples by T. H. Sawin, O. Drew, D. A. Cummings, Abel Andrews, and some sent from the Industrial School at Lancaster, Mass. There were other apples and some cider on exhibition, but we have not the owners names. There were several varieties of yellow corn, some of the nicest being shown by Osgood Drew. Two varieties of snap corn by W. B. Cummings. A string of onions shown by Henry Sawin and large turnips and beets by Geo. Shedd. We also noticed some corn grown by Charlie Hersey, the eight years old son of E. B. Hersey.

Among the work done by the ladies we saw a lot of canned fruit and jellies by Mrs. T. H. Sawin and Mrs. I. F. Jewett. Lillie Hobson showed a very pretty silk quilt and a tidy, both good specimens of crazy work. A knit spread by Mrs. J. H. Lovejoy, a lady 78 years old; a spread of darned lace by Mrs. Fernald, also mats and a pretty cross; also a mat by Mrs. Tracy; afghans were shown by Mrs. J. B. Rand and Mrs. H. P. Elliott. Hattie Knight had a very pretty crazy sofa pillow; Alice Sawin a tidy; Jessie Hobson embroidered table saarf and lambrequin; Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. Rand and Mrs. Jewett had several pretty rugs, Mrs. John Wheeler showing a very large one, and Mrs. Cummings' coming next in size. Mrs. Osgood Drew showed a pretty rag carpet. A collection of minerals to be found in the U. S. was shown by Rev. T. H. Beadenkoff, pastor of the North Waterford Cong. church.

W. J. Wheeler showed an organ, and J. D. Dorr a White Sewing Machine. A gentleman also had a Singer Sewing Machine on exhibition. We did not ascertain his name. Samples of work done by these machines were not as plenty as usual.

The various hall committees failed to make their reports, and as this is written afterward from memory many articles are necessarily omitted.

The Approach of Winter.

Now that the leaves are dying,
And flowers have lost their bloom,
We dream of the new stove wanted,
In parlor and dining room.
And we hasten away to Mason's
And our hearts are filled with glee.
As we gaze on the stoves and ranges
Of every kind and degree.
And when we enquire the prices
In tremulous tones and slow,
Astonishment mingles with gladness
To find them exceedingly low.
Straightway we resolve to purchase,
And add a new charm to life,
During the long, cold winter evenings,
By the parlor stove with a wife.

Oxford County Musical Association.

The eleventh annual meeting of this association was held at Mechanic Falls commencing Tuesday, Oct. 12th, and closing Friday evening, Oct. 15th, under the able leadership of Mr. Kotzschmar, who has for several years had charge, as conductor, of the Oxford County Musical Conventions. A good and well balanced chorus of about 70 voices took part. Rehearsals were held at the Universalist church each day, in the forenoon, afternoon and evening, and concerts were given on Thursday and Friday evenings. A good and appreciative audience attended the miscellaneous concert at the Universalist church Thursday evening. The selections were all well rendered and gave general satisfaction The following programme was given:—
Selection for the Organ,.....Mr. H. Murray.
Trio, The Mariners, Randegger,
.....Mr. Fellows, Mr. Stockbridge, Mr. Coyle.

*Song, Dodo,.....Mr. Stockbridge.
Song, The King and the Miller, Keller,
.....Mr. Coyle.
Quartet, Sweet and Low, Barnby,
.....Mrs. Fellows, Mrs. Morrison, Mr. Stockbridge, Mr. Coyle.

*Song as encores.

On Friday evening Handel's oratorio, "Samson," was given. On account of its length, portions of the oratorio were omitted. The solos were sung with expression, and the choruses were given with good effect. The chorus made some fine shadings, showing the effect of the careful training of Mr. Kotzchmar. The soloists on Friday evening were Mrs. Fellows, Mrs. Morrison, Mr. Stockbridge and Mr. A. C. Harlow, with Mr. Murray as pianist, and Mrs. Alice Towksbury as organist. Mr. Coyle, who was on the programme, was unable to be present Friday evening on account of business engagements.

The church was well filled with good and appreciative audiences on each evening, and general satisfaction was expressed by those present at the successful manner in which the whole affair was carried out.

The Russet and the Gold.

BY MRS. E. O. JEWELL.

Oh! wonderful stretch of woodland,
With leafy banner unrolled,
Close to the blue of the Heaven,
Painted in russet and gold.

'Tis sunset on the still river—
In the liquid mirror, behold
A little patch of the azure,
Bordered in russet and gold.

We hear of the Roman sunset
And the dreamy "Campagna" may hold
Its crimson, orange and purple,
But we've the russet and gold.

'Tis sunrise over the mountain,
And down from the pinnacle bold
There's dropping some leafy splendor,
A bit of the russet and gold.—

And in all the masterly paintings,
Rare, and mellow andold,
The dear old masters have given,
A touch of the russet and gold.

So into the life of weary,
As the leaves their glory unfold,
Will flow through the mists and shadows,
Much of the russet and gold.

And the short gray days of autumn,
They never can never be cold,
When there flutters along the landscape,
Leaflets of russett and gold.

Lift Up Thine Eyes.

BY H. A. J.

The surging tide of life
Was flowing eagerly on.
While dreamily on the beach
Lay a youth in its very morn;
He sought not the troubled sea,
Its commotion wearied his eye;
He toyed with the pebbles around him,
Nor heeded the moments fly.
And the tide of life surged on.

The roar of the seething waters
Sounded afar to his ears,
For his thoughts were travelling onward
To view the coming years;
The dim uncertain future,
He wearily viewed it o'er,
The burdens that might fill the years,
Seemed as the sands on the shore,
And the tide of life surged on.

His heart grew heavy within him,
"Why is this strife?" he cried;
"To what purpose this raging tumult,
When a man has lived and died?
Why strive in these turbulent waters?
Why may I not lie still?
Why not watch the raging billows,
And let them leave at their will?"
And the tide of life surged on.

"I'll not be missed in this seething mass,
There's nothing I need to do!"
Then a voice in the secret depths of his heart,
The still small voice so true,
Cried, "Lift up thine eyes! child of earth!
Go seek the work appointed thee!"
And a wavelet, kissing his feet,
Whispered, "Come and see."
And the tide of life surged on.

Obeying the voice of conscience,
He rose and nearer drew,
Then of his brother man
Took a nearer, clearer view.
As he watched and listened long,
He saw how all did burdens bear,
Some, with love and sunshine in their look.
Some did weary faces wear,
And the tide of life surged on.

He saw how some, both week and strong,
Fought with zeal and earnest prayer,
To hasten the day when wrong and evil,
Should flee before the true and fair;
How some a yawning gulf did form,—
A dark and turbid mass,—
Which drew within it's gaping mouth,
Pure, happy victims fast.
And the tide of life surged on.

Then again he turned his thoughts within:
"These beings, whom God did form
Of like clay with myself,
Push on in sunshine and in storm.
Does not then some portion
Belong to me in life,
Of it's cares and its crosses,
Its burdens and its strife?"
And the tide of life surged on.

"Shall I dare to stand and watch,
And harden thus my heart?
Shall I not rather boldly plunge,
And bravely bear my part?
The Saviour mingled all his life
With weak and sinful men;
I, too, will share their burdens,
And leave the rest with Him."
And the tide of life surged on.

Thus, strangely dark and dreary,
Life sometimes looks to all,
But the sunshine of God's truth
Is a light that never palls.
Then lift up your eyes, there's work for all,
Vice on this earth may dwell,
And of its purpose, let us say,
"He with Him, who doeth all things well."
And still, life's tide surges on.

ENGAGED IN HASTE.

BY MISS M. B BRADON.

She had flung her books upon the table, and had left the chalet hurriedly, and was walking quickly along the path that led to the house. He felt that she was angry with him—that he had, as it were, violated the sanctity of her sorrow—and yet he believed himself her accepted lover. For one delicious moment she had rested in his arms, her eyes had looked at him, not in anger, but in answering love. Those lips of hers had yielded themselves to his kisses. He knew that she loved him—that he had but to wait for a more fitting time to press his suit. And he had her father upon his side, the good old colonel, too. He had fortune, youth, everything that makes fitness in union. And he knew of no likely rival. Could he doubt that he should win her? His heart glowed with triumph as he hurried after her swift footsteps, overtook her, and stood at her side.

"Forgive me, Grace. I will wait for a happier day," he said.

"That day will never come for you and me," she answered, coldly. "Pray forget that you have been so foolish, as I shall try to do."

"Forget those kisses? Never! Grace, I will not be put off like this. I will wait. I will not even speak of my love until your father is out of danger—but you must not thrust me from you coldly; you must not deny my right to claim you by and by."

"Never, never, never," she said. "I tell you it can never be."

"Then you do not love me," he cried, seizing her hands, holding her there on the path, face to face with him, beside himself with love and anger. "You were deceiving me just now, or I was mad and deceived myself. You do not care a straw for me. Say that, Grace—only say that you don't care for me, and you shall never see my face again."

She could not say it; nor for the life of her could she so belie her beating heart, which had gone out to him as a bird to its nest, which belonged to him as a slave to her master.

"I can not engage myself to you," she said. "There are reasons."

"What reasons? There can be no reason except that you deceive me. Why not say so at once, and make an end of the matter? If there were obstacles I would overcome them. Give me one grain of love—no bigger than a mustard seed—and I would remove mountains. But there are no obstacles. We have everything on our side. Your father likes me—he was my father's dearest friend—he would like to would like to see us married."

"I can never marry you," said Grace, sadly. "Why do you press me with painful questions? Please let go my hands."

He released her instantly, with a gloomy look.

"I see. There is some one else whom you love better," he said.

"No, there is no one," she said, impetuously, and then repented that she had so spoken.

"Grace, you are a mystery. If you would only say that you hate me—"

"I will not tell a lie," she answered, walking on toward the house, he still by her side. "If you have any compassion for my present unhappiness, you will say no more."

"Then I will say no more. I know I am a brute—an utterly brutish brute. I suppose, having behaved so badly, I must not come to Darnel any more."

"You must do as you like about that," she answered, wearily.

"Then I shall like to come. Life would be a burden if I could not see you now and then."

In her heart of hearts she liked to see him, for her life would have been a blank without that pleasant companionship. She had snubbed him unmercifully ever since her return from Paris, and yet he had never wavered in his devotion. And he had his reward, though he knew it not; for he had won her in spite of herself. But she was a true Darnel, and had a loyal regard for a promise once given. And in an evil hour she had given a promise which bound her to Victor de Camillac or to lifelong celibacy.

"Good-bye," she said, curtly, and Mr. Colchester was fain to accept the dismissal.

They were close to the hall door by this time. He had no excuse for lingering any longer.

"Good-bye, Grace—my Grace," he said, with a final flash of determination.

And then as he walked slowly down the avenue he repeated to himself "My Grace, mine, yes, my dear, mine, for I mean to win you."

He went home full of trouble and perplexity. There had been that in Grace's eyes as she looked upon him which seemed to him an assurance of her love. There had been that in the sweet mouth, with lips half parted and faintly tremulous, which told of deepest feeling. For some blissful moments he had held her in his arms, flushed with triumph, believing himself her accepted lover. And then she had thrust him from her, and told him that she could never be his wife. There was a contradiction here, that argued a mystery, a mystery in the life of a girl who had been to him as the incarnation of purity and truth. If she could deceive, if she could stoop to double-dealing, there was an end of Edward Colchester's faith in womanhood.

CHAPTER XI.

"I LOVE, AND HE LOVES ME AGAIN."

Col. Stukely spent a long and wearisome afternoon dawdling about the lanes and little clusters of laborers' cottages which called themselves villages, entering into conversation with every man, woman, and child whom he could beguile into a dialogue, and suffering intensely from his conscientious efforts to understand a patois which was almost as a foreign language to him. But in all the flood of talk to which he listened with a sublime patience, the good colonel could discover not one solitary sentence bearing upon the task which he had set himself to perform.

Riding slowly homeward he tried to cheer himself with the notion that as he had failed in the endeavor to trace the footsteps of Victor Camillac, so, also, must Mr. Penwern fail. He had no apprehension that his talents in the detective line were inferior to those of the professional inquirer. Indeed, it seemed to him that his education and experience must be more than a match for the technical training of Scotland Yard. He argued, therefore, that the young Frenchman had got clear off, and that he had nothing to fear for his beloved god-daughter.

The 8 o'clock dinner was a dismal function. Lady Darnel still kept her room. Miss Darnel sat in her brother's place and went through the ceremonial with a fortitude which savored of martyrdom. Grace edged her chair as close as she could to the colonel's, ate hardly anything, and was curiously absent-minded, looking up at her godfather every now and then with a little appealing glance which went straight to his heart, smiling to herself now and then, as she looked down at her plate, with a strange shy smile, and at one stage of the entertainment suddenly bursting suddenly into tears.

"My dear Grace, if you cannot command yourself better than this, you should follow Lady Darnel's example, and hide yourself from the light of day," remonstrated her aunt.

"Let her cry," said the colonel, patting the girl's shoulder affectionately. "Tears are a relief, and why should she repress the signs of her grief. There is no secret about her sorrow. We are all of the same mind."

The colonel had no inclination to sit alone over his claret. He left the dining-room with Miss Darnel and her niece. In the hall Grace put her arm through his.

"Come on the terrace for a little walk," she said.

"My dear Grace, there is no moon, and it is very cold," urged Dora. What pleasure can there be in walking on the terrace on such a night?"

"No pleasure. I do not expect pleasure, but I must have air. I am stifling for want of air."

"I should have thought you had air enough this afternoon when you were tearing about the grounds with Mr. Colchester," retorted her aunt, sharply.

"Will you come, godpapa," asked Grace, ignoring the reproof. "You don't mind walking up and down the terrace with me for a quarter of an hour, even if it is dark and cold?"

"I shall like it very much, if you put on your jacket."

Grace ran up-stairs, obtained the latest bulletin of her father's condition—always the same hopeless report—and came down in her sealskin jacket. In another minute she and the colonel were out of doors, and beyond the searching eye and keen ear of Dora.

"Any news?" asked Grace, excitedly, hanging on the colonel's arm.

"Not a word. I believe that unlucky young fellow has got clear off, and you may wash your hands of him and his fate."

"I can not do that," said Grace, gloomily; "I am under a promise."

"No promise can hold good with a criminal," answered the colonel.

"A criminal! In heaven's name, what do you mean?"

"I mean that a detective has been at Darnel this morning, and that he has discovered the foot-prints of a stranger across the flower-beds, just such footprints as would be made by that wretched down-at-heel creature we saw on the common. There was a considerable sum of money stolen out of Lady Darnel's morning room, money which we all know to have been there on the night your father was shot. It is clear to the man from Scotland Yard that Sir Allan was wounded by a stranger who entered that room and stole that money. Now, my reading of the story is, that this Camillac was hanging about the house on that night, in the hope of getting an interview with you, that he was on the balcony for some time, saw the money put away, and took advantage of Lady Darnel's leaving the room to enter and possess himself of that money. He was surprised by your father, and turned upon him—in the manner we know."

"No, no; it is too horrible! The man I once loved, the man I promised to marry—a midnight robber—a murderer! It can not be," protested Grace. "Surely I am not an utter fool. I know that man was a gentleman by birth, a gentleman by education and breeding."

"Gentlemen drift to the gutter; gentlemen join the criminal classes every day in the year, my poor Grace," said the colonel, gravely. "I do not suppose for a moment that you would mistake a cad for a gentleman; but there is such a thing as a reckless man gone thoroughly to the bad, and I'm afraid your Victor de Camillac is just such a one. All that we can hope is that he has got clear off, and that your dear father's wound may not prove fatal."

"Fatal! O, God, if it were, I should be my father's murderer—for it was my folly that brought that man to this house. Oh, why should so trival a sin bring such a terrible punishment? If my father were to die I should never lift up my head again. I should pray God to end my days. I never, never could know peace of mind any more!"

She clung to her kind old friend, sobbing hysterically, beside herself with horror.

"My dear child, don't give way to such grief," said the colonel, soothingly. "God grant your father may recover. And, after all, this suspicion of mine may be wrong. The criminal may be a stranger of whom we know nothing. Remember, it is only a conjecture on my part."

"If you were right, if it were he, my sin would have been the cause of my father's death," said Grace; and then she remembered that bitter cry of Lady Darnel's, those awful words spoken by the lips of a sleeper: "My fault, my fault, I murdered him!"

How strange that those self-accusing words, uttered unconsciously, should be echoed now by Grace, waking and sentient.

"No, I will not believe it," she said presently. "After all, there is no evidence to go upon. There is no real ground for such a hideous suspicion. I believe that poor creature fell down somewhere, ill or dying, and that he never came to Darnel Park."

"You may be right, Grace. My view of the case was only a succession of conjectures. I should never have thought of it if that man from Scotland Yard had not set my wits at work. There is something infectious in the maneuvers of these people. Only I thought it right to tell you everything, more especially as you insist upon considering yourself bound to this adventurer."

"I insist upon acting as a woman of honor should act," answered Grace, with a heroic air.

"And you consider yourself bound to a beggar?"

"I consider myself bound to him till he releases me. I know he would release me from my promise if I could only see him and tell him everything."

"Indeed! There is something that he must be told, then?"

"Yes," murmured Grace, hanging her pretty head.

Ohio Letter.

MASSILLON, OHIO, Sept. 28, '86.

It is now nearly night and it has rained all day, and it is about as nasty as any place I ever was at. All I have been able to see to-day was glass blowing in a bottle factory, and making cigar boxes. To-morrow I am intending to visit the coal mines at New Philadelphia, 25 miles south from here, where my nephew is part owner, and has charge of the men.

Wednesday morning we start at 6:20, a. m., for New Philadelphia. The country soon begins to be broken and mountainous, and we are in the coal regions. Arriving at the mine, the train was stopped for us to get off, and we found the teams had commenced hauling the coal out of the mine to the shute, when it was emptied onto the cars, to be sent to any destination where ordered. The entrance to the mine is in the side of the mountain, some 100 or more feet from the base, where the layer of coal is about 6 feet in thickness.

We got into the empty car on its way to be reloaded, and were soon beyond any light, and but for the little torch we had with us, we should have been in total darkness. We were drawn along by mules, and were met by the loaded cars going out, 4 cars being a load for a mule. At about three-fourths of a mile from the entrance we arrived to where the miners were at work, and after a few minutes spent in viewing the operations, I took a pick and picked a little myself, a specimen of which I shall take home with me.

We start to go out, and as all the cars going out are loaded, we have to walk, and a good deal of the way the ceiling was so low we had to stoop, and the roadway was at times quite wet and muddy. When in at the farthest we were some 500 feet under ground.

A current of air was kept up throughout by a furnace, which went out from the base of the mountain about 50 ft.

After coming out of the mine we visited the rolling mills, where they were rolling sheet and bar iron; also the foundry where cast iron water pipes were made. The pipes are cast on end. The pipes for water works are now being laid in the town of New Philadelphia, and also in Massillon, using about 25 miles of pipes in each town. After inspecting all the works, we returned to Massillon, arriving here at 4, p. m.

On the train I met the Hon. H. B. Payne, senator from Ohio, of whom there has been so much said, and such clamoring for an investigation. My brother being acquainted with him, I had the honor of an introduction, if honor it be.

September 29th, I spent the forenoon in the city of Massillon, inspecting the water works and fine buildings. In the afternoon, I went to Canton to the county fair, where I saw the biggest horses I had ever seen, but I have seen larger cattle in Maine.

It was an immense show—especially of people and carriages.—the whole grounds were packed nearly solid full, and it was estimatrd there were over 30,000 people. There was a painting of the battle of Gettysburg on the grounds which was very good. The show of machinery and agricultural implements was large, as was all others; but among somany individuals could see but little.

October 1st, in the forenoon I went through the Russell M'f'g shops, where steam augurs of all kinds are made, also mowers and reapers. They are stupendous works, in which tehre is over 4 miles of belting used to run the machinery. At 4, p. m., we start for Cleveland, arriving there at 7, p. m. We then take the steamer City of Detroit, and Saturday, Oct. 2d, at 6 o'clock were in Detroit. From there we left on the Michigan Central, arriving at our destination, Taylor Center, Michigan, at 9, a. m. The country in this section is flat and quite productive.

Sunday morning, Oct. 3d, there is no church to go to to-day, and we employ the time as best we can with the privilege at hand.

This is a farming community, and the settlers are all Dutch. There is a gas well here that has been burning about two months. Monday night I returned to Detroit, and took the steamer City of Cleveland for Cleveland, arriving there the next morning. After spending most of the forenoon in taking in the city, I took the cars for Massillon, where the women were ready to start for home, and the next day we started at 10, a. m., and in 24 hours were in Boston.

Three Months Free.

The publishers of that excellent monthly, THE HOUSEKEEPER, Minneapolis, Minn., offer to send it free for three months to any lady who sends them the postoffice address of twenty ladies who do housekeeping alone. The addresses may be at one or several postoffices, but must be sent before November 15th, 1886. THE HOUSEKEEPER is one of the best publications in the country.

We copy the following from the North Bridgton Academy Stranger concerning two of its distinguished alumni who have died the past year:—

Dexter A. Hawkins was born at Fryeburg, in 1826. He attended school at Bethel, but when his teacher, Mr. Soule, came to the principalship of Bridgton Academy, he removed here with him and remained at the Academy two years, preparing for college and acting at the same time as Instructor of Mathematics. He is remembered by those who were here chiefly as a close student, with remarkable ability in the line of Mathematics, while his name often appears in the lyceum records of that time as one of the leading members in debate. Having prepared himself here to enter the Sophomore class of Bowdoin College, he graduated there in 1848, studied law with William Pitt Fessenden, and afterward obtained a high reputation as a lecturer on educational subjects. In 1854 he commenced the practice of law in New York City, and up to the time of his death was one of the foremost members of the New York bar, having been especially active and successful in the overthrow of the Tweed ring. He always maintained an active interest in Bridgton Academy, and will be remembered as the orator of the day at the great alumni reunion in 1882. This sketch would be incomplete on that occasion come to us with new force as we realize that he is gone. Said he:—"We have done what we could for you. Act your part like men." In person he was about the average height, with strong face, clear, keen eye and pleasant voice and manner.

Elbridge Gerry was born in Waterford, in 1814. At the age of seventeen he entered Bridgton Academy, and continued his studies here till 1834. Though not particularly brilliant as a scholar, he was a ready speaker and good debater in the Lyceum, and gave evidence of the abilities which were soon to be called into service. After studying law some years, he entered upon the practice of his profession, and rose rapidly from one office to another, till 1848 he was nominated as Representative of his District in Congress and was elected by a large majority. While there, he took active part in the legislation of the important measures of that time, and well sustained the interests of his State. Declining a re-election he returned to his large legal practice, and in 1853 removed to Portland, where he continued to reside until his late death.

Many ministers of the gospel, merchants and business men suffer greatly with Indigestion from an over-worked brain. Rev. Sewell Brown, of East Corinth, writes, "I have used Bell's Sarsaparilla for severe attacks of Indigestion with very beneficial resulty." (Only 50 cts. per bottle.)

Sunday-School Lesson.

For October 24th.

Jesus Crucified.—John xix, 17—30. Notes.—"They took Jesus therefore."—"They," not the Roman soldiers, but the chief priests and the Jews.——"And he went out, bearing the cross for himself."—There is no contradiction betwixt this statement and that of the three earlier Gospels, which say that the cross was borne by Simon of Cyrene. Jesus had borne it at first, in accordance with the usual custom, but had afterward been compelled through fatigue to resign it.——"Golgotha."—Probably a small skull-shaped hillock where criminals were frequently executed.——"And Pilate wrote a title also."—It was the custom of the time to nail an inscription to the cross, giving the malefactor's name and crime. Pilate ordered this to be done now, and he himself dictated the words.——"Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews."—This was to be despite to the Jews, not to Jesus. The Gospels all give the substance of the title, but John alone the exact form of the words. He was the only one of the Evangelists present at the scene.——"What I have written I have written."—Their request was denied in the most curt and contemptuous language.——"The soldiers, therefore, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments, and made four parts, to every soldier a part."—There are now only four soldiers, the usual number of a Roman guard (comp. Acts xii, 4). This division of garments among the soldiers was in accordance with the Roman law in such cases. All the garments except the tunic could be fairly divided among these; but the tunic, or coat, being woven from the top throughout and without seam would be valueless if divided. This we understand to be a long garment reaching to the feet, woven so as to fit closely to the body, like what was worn by the high priest, the garment of Rev. i, 13.——"That the Scripture might be fulfilled."—The evangelist sees the fulfillment of Scripture both in the dividing and in the casting of lots. The quotation is from Ps. xxii, 18, and is an accurate reproduction of the Septuagint.——"But there were standing by the cross of Jesus, his mother and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene."—These four women seem designedly placed in contrast with the four soldiers, the former the friends of Jesus, the latter his enemies. On the supposition that four women are mentioned, it appears from the earlier Gospels that the second, here unnamed, was Salome, John's mother. If this is so, John and Jesus were cousins.——"Behold, thy son! Behold thy mother."—This can better be taken as an act of filial care for the mother whose soul is about to be pierced by the sword, spoken of by Simeon. (Luke ii, 35.) Christ's renunciation of earthly relationship was spoken of in John ii, 4.——"Vinegar."—Probably the ordinary sour wine which was used by the soldiers to drink.——"Hyssop."—Hyssop plant was too low and bushy to supply a reed. It is a small bunch of hyssop which was most probably attached to a reed, and the sponge was fastened to the hyssop end of the rod, and thus conveyed to the lips of Jesus.——"It is finished."—It is the shout of victory rather than of satisfaction that suffering was at an end. It was uttered just before the words found in Luke xxiii, 46. He voluntarily gave up his spirit into the hands of his Father. His work on earth was accomplished. His death as well as his life was a free-will offering to man.

Instruction.—Personal cross-bearing is the Christian's hardest duty. This must never be stricken. The Jews gave us a helpful example in bearing his own cross, though he staggered under it. "God makes crosses of great variety," says a French writer. "He makes some of iron and lead, that look as if they must crush; some of straw, that seem so light, and yet are no less difficult to carry; some he makes of gold and precious stones, that dazzle the eye and excite the envy of the spectators, but in reality are as well able to crucify as those which are so much dreaded."

Christian was freed from his load when he kneeled before the cross. This is the way to lose even the heaviest burden.

In times of misfortune there are always keen-eyed buzzards enough that will flock in to pick the downfallen one to pieces and to scream in derision. Such were these soldiers. Is it not better to be on the watch and to lend all a helping hand? This is a natural duty besides being Christlike.

Jesus in his supreme hour of death did not forget his dearest friend. The test of friendship is to be true in times of trial to the dead as well as to the living. Christ, though dead, still liveth. Should we prove faithless, he is still abiding faithful; for we are assured that each disciple is his personal friend.

Our Lord finished his part in becoming the Saviour of sinners only at his death. The work and sufferings of his followers are likewise only finished here below at their death. Faithfulness to the end was the burden of the apostles' cry to the churches.

Solid Comfort.

After a hard day's work in the office, the store, the hunting-room or the study, nothing is so instrumental in resting one in the evening as a comfortable, easy chair. We do not mean a chair which simply looks comfortable, but one that is really comfortable. We have been the fortunate possessor of one of the latter class for some weeks, and have taken solid comfort in it many an evening. It is a chair finely upholstered, with exceedingly comfortable springs, a high back always waiting to rest the head, a reading attachment for holding a book, and a foot-rest which can be adjusted to many positions. By a simple movement the back of this chair can be changed to almost any angle, from an upright to a very reclining position. It is thus a perfect chair, a willing servant to every mood or whim of the occupant; and under all circumstances will be made comfortable. Did you ask where you may get one? They are manufactured by the Laburg Manufacturing Co., 145 North 8th Street, Philadelphia, Penn., who will send catalogues upon application, enclosing a stamp.

Much damage was done in the Central States by the recent "Great Gale." A number of people are missing.

In view of the unwarranted attacks upon our celebrated Rubber Paint, by some persons who are either ignorant of its virtues or blindly prejudiced, we feel in justice to ourselves we should correct some false impressions in regard to this paint.

The fact that during the past six years we have sold nearly five thousand gallons in this vicinity, and that on its merits, is good evidence that it is a superior article. We find invariably, that cases cited as being derogatory to this paint, are without foundation, and in nine cases out of ten, the buildings referred to were NOT PAINTED WITH RUBBER PAINT, BUT SOME OTHER BRAND, and as often "oil and oil" as anything. We challange any one to bring any substantial evidence against this paint, and ask no other recommendation for it than is given by those who have proved it. We could give you scores of testimonials from well known persons in its favor. We shall endeavor to keep a good stock on hand, and will send sample cards and circulars free on application.

TESTIMONIALS.

OXFORD, ME., March 29, 1886.

Messrs. S. P. Maxim & Son:

I have used your Rubber Paint for several years, and consider it unequalled for economy and durability, and believe it to be superior to the best "lead and oil" for both inside and outside work. FRED HOWE.

SOUTH PARIS, April, 22, '86.

Messrs. S. P. Maxim & Son:

I have used your Rubber Paint for six years and find it highly satisfactory, and shall continue using it, believing it to be a superior article. (1tf.) S. F. BRIGGS.

Dr. JOHN F. TRUE'S
CELEBRATED

CUSTY
Pin Worm Elixir!
A GREAT DISCOVERY!
It is claimed to be the safest, most potent, and most effectual remedy known for this child-killing Disease. As a cathartic vermifuge it has no equal. It expels all kinds of worms, and in fact all living creatures that infest the bowels of suffering humanity are triumphant by expelling by this truly wonderful remedy. Testimony in its favor comes in from all sections where it is known. It not only effectual in removing from the system these troublesome and disagreeable worms, but children who have been weak and puny for years are at once improved and restored to health by its
